

iOttie Redefines Fast Wireless Charging at CES 2018 With New Line Of Contemporary, Powerful Qi Wireless Devices

With five CES Innovation Awards for wireless charging, iOttie's latest products include a fabric-wrapped Qi charging pad and a home charging station, both of which are designed to blend seamlessly into home or office decor.

LAS VEGAS - Jan. 8, 2018 — iOttie, a leading mobile accessories company, today announced several beautifully designed home charging solutions at CES 2018. iOttie introduced its new iON Wireless™ series, which features products like the Fast Charging Pad, Stand, Mini Pad, and the 2018 CES Innovation Award-winning iON Home Wireless Power Station, among other new products. With five generations of CES Innovation Awards for wireless charging, iOttie is an established industry leader known to design high quality, user-friendly devices - and its newest products are no exception.

“Five years of CES Innovation Awards have driven iOttie to push the design and features in the wireless charging category to meet the needs of today’s smartphone user,” said Eric Kang, Senior Director at iOttie. “The new iON Wireless Charging product series seamlessly blends elevated style with fast wireless charging technology to offer a convenient way to power devices at home or in the office.”

A new kind of central wireless charging pad that complements both the style of a user’s home and their pace of life, the iON Wireless Charging Pad features Qi wireless fast charging technology, heat reduction modifications, and an additional USB-A power port to support an extra smartphone and offer maximum utility. Five stylish fabric finishes give the Charging Pad a softer, more refined look and feel, and enable users to coordinate with their home or office decor. iOttie’s new iON Wireless series also includes the Fast Charging Mini Pad, a compact yet powerful wireless charging solution with elevated style, and Fast Charging Stand, which is designed with a 65-degree tilt to allow for easy viewing of a smartphone while charging wirelessly. All three products will be available later this quarter.

The showpiece of this release is the iON Home Wireless Power Station, a sleek and incredibly powerful product that represents the future of wireless charging. Designed to serve all home and office charging needs, the iON Home Wireless Power Station charges up to 40 percent faster than standard Qi wireless charging and supports up to six devices and two small appliances. Once users adhere a thin metal plate to their Qi-enabled phone or phone case, magnets hidden under the front surface of the iON Home Wireless Power Station securely hold the phone in place while it charges wirelessly. The device, which will be available for purchase later this year, also features a discrete cord management system, a secondary smartphone holding tray, a soft ambient night light and more.

iOttie also launched the iON Home Power Station and Easy One Touch Wireless CD Mount and Air Vent Mounts at CES.
